Secret History of the Great Rebellion

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette presents a letter from Chris Krubeen of St Louis to Robert M Resick of the same place dated at New York August 1863, saying that he is but one of a large number in the possession of the proper author ies which have been collected and carefully filed bearing on the secret history of the great conspiracy We make some extracts

I spent a day with Story at Chicago and what he failed to say at St Louis he told me You understand me I still regard him as the truest and best man we have to deal with Story gave me a strong letter to Vallandigham whom I met at the Clifton and with whom I spent some pleasant hours—the more as my wife and Mrs V and her sister had an opportunity to become acquainted and Pendleton and old Caldwell from Cincinnati arrived during the same time Vallandigham made a good impression on me, though I can neither understand or appreciate his policy This is neither an occasion nor a means to exchange a full opinion on a matter of this kind but to be candid, the mystery surrounding Ohio politics bewilders my simple notion of right, and in my judgment bodes no good

Nevertheless incomprehensible or bewildering as the case may be Vallandigham is the representative man for the great West, and I am reluctant to apply my partial judgment in passing on the policy he deems best to pursue, at least, not for the present So it seems the friends of Vallandigham in Ohio to a man, counseled him against returning to his State at once for reasons incompatible with any notions of political generalship learned by me up to this time But as Story said, Ohio politics are peculiar Let us hope that that peculiarity may not render them entirely unacceptable after we shall have had an opportunity to pass judgment on them You will find below that in passing on Seymour I shall also, pass on Vallandigham The two occupy the same ground at present, the difference being only that one has the power which Vallandigham endeavors to obtain

I sincerely believe that Seymour is infinitely more radical at heart than he can be permitted to express for he is a public officer under responsibilities appalling to weak and ordinary men and well entitled to feel the arm of executive power, and men of balance even like and his advisers toward saving the country for the time being have set up on a species of counterfeit Machiavellian which we at home in plain English would term cowardice, in the shape of destructive measures Not being courageous enough to make them decisive themselves, they look forward for others to make it for them, and like Micawber, wait for something to turn up This is the way it looks to an outsider Let us have the power first, and then we shall know how to act This is our motto As our present corrupt and unlawful administration has inaugurated so they seem determined to follow, imitating their worst enemy and deeming themselves boundlessly lucky if they can prevent a civil war at the North The Presidential election in the great bogaboo, and to which Moloch every right and other consideration are to be sacrificed I cannot choose to comment on this state of facts, but simply state what I know

To sum it up I fear that the temporizing policy now foreshadowed in the Empire State will by the next Presidential election, cause the extinguishment of the fatal heresy of State Rights (as our Abolition masters express themselves) in New York and, in consequence, in the other States Then too and best may we have to deal with Story gave me a strong letter to Vallandigham whom I met at the Clifton and with whom I spent some pleasant hours—the more as my wife and Mrs V and her sister had an opportunity to become acquainted and Pendleton and old Caldwell from Cincinnati arrived during the same time Vallandigham made a good impression on me, though I can neither understand or appreciate his policy This is neither an occasion nor a means to exchange a full opinion on a matter of this kind but to be candid, the mystery surrounding Ohio politics bewilders my simple notion of right, and in my judgment bodes no good

STATUE OF EVERETT.—The statue of Edward Everett has been completed in clay by Story and is now at mans ready for casting It is expected to arrive at Boston some time in May, and it will be dedicated in June

The Friend of the Friendless.

The State of Pennsylvania gave to General Jackson over fifty thousand majority for President The whole Commonwealth seemed doomed to the perpetual sway of that school of politics thenceforth and the young citizen of our State was a brave man who in those days, for conscience sake refused to float with the current

About that time a young lawyer from New England settled in one of the southern counties of the old Keystone Being gifted with unusual powers of intellect, and filled with high and proper aspirations many wondered that he did not become a Jackson man and be carried on the wave of popular applause to the highest post of honor in the land

Had selfish ambition been the ruling passion in his mind doubtless he would have joined his fortunes to those of the dominant party and thereby at the expense of his principles, have reaped the ephemeral harvest of partisan triumph but it was a different mission and self was made to kick the beam by the weightier matter duty

At that day the whole country was ruled by the twin sisters of oppression—Ignorance and Slavery Scarcely any man dared risk his reputation, who desired official position solely for the public good by espousing the cause of the poor and downtrodden as against the power of wealth and caste, even in republican America When it was not only unpopular to be an Abolitionist, but actually danger ous to life, the career of this young man began amidst a people living on a border county, who had daily intercourse with slaveowners living on adjoining estates Separated only by an imaginary State line, the prejudices of those living north of that landmark—the firmament "Mason and Dixon's line"—were as strongly developed as were those of their neighbors living to the southward thereof Nothing saved him from being cast aside and being trodden under foot of men but his own high toned, manly dignity of character and a heaven born zeal for the right, coupled with mark ed eloquence of utterance, which enabled him, not only to convince all who listened to his earnest appeals for the friendless of the honesty of his own convictions but, in many cases to convert former enemies into lifelong friends His first experience in connection with slavery, which was rapidly followed by others—several cases of which I propose reciting, which have never yet been published—was in this wise

Being engaged as counsel in several important suits in one of the courts of Maryland, he learned that a poor girl was confined in jail for the purpose of being sold at noon on Saturday of the first week of the term, as part of the estate, but who was believed to be free On learning that she had no person to look after her rights—none of the local members of the bar daring about attacking the prejudices of the day, for no fee or hope of reward, against one of the wealthiest and most powerful families in the county, which claimed her—this bold young man, from a comparatively boring State volunteering his services When an interview was brought about between him and his new found client, he was utterly amazed to find her to be as white as he was himself He took hold of the case with all the energy of his ardent nature, and, after a desperate struggle with one of the ablest lawyers at the bar, he succeeded in rescuing the poor girl from the clutch of slavery

Several years thereafter, while going from his home at Gettysburg to the city of Baltimore, in his own private carriage, he stopped at a hotel on the route for dinner The bartender—a bright, intelligent looking young man, evidently a son of the landlord from the striking resemblance—drove the horses to the stable, and the young lawyer walked into the parlor Soon afterward a beautiful young woman came in and addressed him thus

"Oh! sir, you are the man who saved me from a life of slavery and misery can you not also save my poor husband from a similar fate?"

Upon inquiry, he learned that she who stood before him was the same in whose behalf he had labored at the court of that same county a few terms prior thereto—as already narrated

"Who is your husband" and what can I do for him?" he asked

"He is the young man who took charge of your horse," she replied, "and his father, the landlord, is now about selling him to a soul-driver"

"Why, that young man is white."

"Yes, sir, I believe he is, but he is a slave"

Just then an open buggy was driven in front of the house and our friend recognized its occupants to be the landlord and a notorious slave-dealer from the city of Baltimore Overhearing a remark which fell from the lips of the former, he discovered that the statement of the woman was true, and that no sale had yet taken place. He immediately called the bloated old publican aside, and asked him "What it was he was proposing to sell—doubtless a favorite horse?"

"No, sir," said the brute "I want to sell that boy"

"No, certainly not, he is your own son"

"Yes, I know he is my own son, but I have made up my mind to sell him I sold two brothers of his and a sister, and I will sell him I am going to the races next week, and must take with me three hundred dollars, and I have only one hundred and fifty, and will sell him for three hundred and fifty dollars I am offered three hundred and forty, but I must have the full amount."

"Come come now I will go the one-half, and you give your son the other half, and we will transact him"

"No I must have the full sum"

"Very well I will give you two hundred dollars, and you will give him one hundred and fifty"

"No, I must have all I ask"

"Well, then, I will give you two hundred and fifty dollars, and you give him two hundred dollars"

"Not a bit of it. If you want him, I will sell him to you as soon as to the slave-dealer, for he has been a faithful boy and I believe that if you get him you will set him free"

"I want him only for that purpose, and I am please the heir you speaking well of him He ought not to be separated from his wife The money you get thus will do you no good One week at the races where you are sure to lose every dollar, will be poor consolation for inflicting life long misery on these two poor creatures Come, I will give you three hundred dollars and you gave him $[illegible]"

"No, no, no! I have said it, and I will stick to it. I must have the whole amount No gentleman ( ) would think of going to the races with less than five hundred dollars, and I must have the full amount."

"I will make you another offer I will give you three hundred and twenty five dollars, and you give him twenty five"

"No, I won't, and I am tired talking to you That dealer is going to see another boy, and if he buys him he will want mine"

"Now see here, that man wants your son to sell South for the purpose of making money on him I only want to set him free I will give you as much as he offered you—three hundred and forty dollars"

"There, now, you both bid the same sum, and I will put him up at auction between you and I must knock him down to the highest bidder

No, if I buy him that man must not know that we are talking on that subject till all is arranged You remain here till I send for the clerk of the court and I will give you all you ask"

The clerk was sent for, the papers made out the money paid down and the son of a Maryland father was made a free man by the money of a Pennsylvania lawyer and slavery henceforth owned him a debt which she has now nearly paid by her devotion but which will not be fully cancelled until every vestige of the foul wrong is forever banished from the land of the free and the home of the brave

The people of Adams county, feeling the necessity for the services of this champion of friendless humanity in the halls of legislation, sent our friend to Harrisburg to represent them in the Assembly While there, he exerted all his influence and efforts to promote the welfare of the people of the State, without regard to creed party or complexion A bachelor and the owner of large estates, which would be, and which were, heavily taxed to raise funds to educate the children of other people's, he is the recognized father of the admirable system of free schools which now exists in his adopted State This system will remain who e time lasts an imperishable monument to the disinterested benevolence and far seeing wisdom of one of Penney lvania's best and ablest citizens —Thaddeus Stevens —Philadelphia Press

Regulations for Lent for the Diocese of Oregon City

The following are the regulations for Lent for the present year commencing March 6th, instant

1 All the week days of Lent, from Ash Wednesday till Easter Sunday are fast days The precept, on one meal with the allowance of collation in the evening and a cup of tea or coffee with a small piece of dry bread in the morning

2 The precept of fasting implies that also of abstinence from the use of flesh meat But, by dispensation the use of flesh meat is allowed in this Diocese once a day at its principal meal on all Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays of Lent Holy Thursday excepted and at every meal on all Sundays. By the foregoing dispensation there remains only three days of abstinence every week from Ash Wednesday till the Holy Week, of which the last four days are of strict abstinence

3 The regular meal is not without reasonable cause to be taken long before noon

4 The use of flesh meat and fish at the same meal is prohibited

5 There is no prohibition to use eggs, butter milk and cheese Lard may be used in preparing fish and vegetables etc. in all Lent This dispensation extends also to the days of abstinence throughout the year

6 The Church excuses from the old guilt of fasting (but not of abstinence from flesh meat, except in special cases of sickness or the like), the following classes of persons, viz the infirm those whose duties are of an exhausting or laborious character those under twenty-one years of age or only attaining their growth, women in pregnancy or nursing infants and those who are enfeebled by old age.

7 It is eminently in the spirit of the Church that such persons should supply in part by good works, for what is remitted in fasting and abstinence

8 Fervent prayer and alms deeds according to each one's ability, ought to be the inseparable companions of our fasting These three sisters should go hand to hand to help us in our warfare against our three mortal enemies, the flesh the world, and the devil According to the advice of the Angel to Tobias, xii, 8 prayer is good with fasting and alms, more than to lay up treasure of gold " The practice of these eminent good works we must oppose to that triple concupiscence that reigns in the world, (I. St John, ii. 16) and by means of which Satan maintains his empire over our senses

By fasting we overcome the lust of the flesh By almsdeeds we subdue the lust of the eyes by which we are apt to covet the mammon of the world and its empty toys and by fervent and humble prayer we conquer the pride of life and put to flight the devil, the king of pride Let us call out this holy season those powerful auxiliaries to help us all the forty days of Lent by a more earnestly practice kept in many Christian houses in saying the Rosary and evening prayers in families every day in Lent This holy exercise we would recommend to be practiced by all during Lent.

K But all ought to remember that the very soul of the fasting is inward penance, which is the penitential spirit This penitential spirit implies a deep sense of the guilt of our sins, a horror and detestation of our past disloyalties and treasons, and a hearty sorrow for them, a sincere desire to return to God and renounce our sinful ways for the future, and, particularly, a readiness of mind to make the best satisfaction we are able to the Divine Justice of penancing ourselves for our sins Resting in this spirit cannot help of moving God to mercy

10 The usual evening exercises of the Lent in the churches, consisting of the Rosary of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Instruction, and the Benediction of the Holy Sacrament, are recommended on every Wednesday and Friday in Lent

Given at Portland, Oregon, March 1, 1867

P S The following Dispensations of Abstinence have been renewed at Rome for ten years from August 23, 1867 for the whole Ecclesiastical Province of Oregon City etc

1 On all the Saturdays of the year which are not fasting days of obligation.
2 On the Wednesdays of Advent.
3 On the three Rogation days after St. Mark.

MURDERING FREEDMEN.—Gen Ord has just made a report upon the condition of things in Arkansas He sums up matters as follows "Outrages, assaults and murders committed on the persons of freedmen and women are being continually reported from nearly all sections of the State, and a decided want of disposition to punish offenders apparently exists with the civil officers and in the minds of the people. There have been reported fifty two murders of freed persons by white men in this State in the past three or four months, and no reports have been received that the murderers have been imprisoned or punished. In some parts of the State, particularly in the southwest and southeast, freedmen's lives are threatened if they report their wrongs to the agent of the Bureau, and in many instances the parties making reports are missed and never heard of afterward. It is believed that the number of murders reported is not half the number committed during the time mentioned"

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 2, 1867.

Across the Continent.

The San Francisco Bulletin of a late date reproduces from the New York Tribune a large map, showing the various routes across the continent on which railroads are either building or projected, together with a statement of distances from point to point on the Central Road, the one which has made the greatest advancement toward completion. Stretching westward from Omaha, the road has already nearly or quite reached the confluence of the two main branches of the Platte river. Here it is to cross the north branch, and follow for some distance the valley of the south fork. The route passes about one hundred miles north of Denver City, enters the southern part of Dakota Territory, again meets the waters of the North Platte, follows their course through the great chain of mountains, passes a little distance north of old Fort Bridger, deflects toward the south and reaches Salt Lake City. From this point the road will probably follow a nearly direct line through Utah and Nevada.

Connecting with the main trunk at Omaha are two lines crossing the State of Iowa and converging at Council Bluffs. One of these lines connects with the Illinois system of railroads at Rock Island. The other lies farther to the north and crosses the Mississippi at a point in nearly a direct line with Chicago. The first mentioned of these lines is not quite completed; the latter is in operation.

The main line, by the central route from Omaha to San Francisco is 1,740 miles long. According to the Tribune's statement, 408 of this distance is already completed; leaving 1,332 miles yet unfinished. Both companies, the Union and the Central Pacific, are confident that they will reach Salt Lake within four years.

It is known that there are immense beds of iron in the mountains along the route which can be easily worked. To save the cost of transportion, the company intend to erect smelting furnaces and rolling mills, and manufacture the rails for a great part of the road.

Importations.

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury gives information that during the last fiscal year the importations of iron and manufactures of iron into the United States, amounted, in value, to $19,953,571. For the same period the importations of steel and the manufactures thereof were raised at $7,761,808. Now this iron and steel ought all to be produced in this country. But our taxes on manufactures, labor, etc., are so large as to offset the existing tariff, and in consequence foreign labor and capital are brought in direct competition with our own. That the rate of protection is nothing like so great and "oppressive" as many allege, is a fact conclusively proven by the importation of such vast quantities of iron and iron manufactures.

But a still more alarming feature is the vastness of our importations of wool and woolen goods. The Treasury report shows that the value of these commodities imported into this country during the last fiscal year amounted to $60,776,558. This is an enormous total. There can be no wonder that a multitude of factories in all parts of the country have ceased operations. A proper adjustment of our import and excise duties would go far to remedy the present difficulty. With the taxes on home manufactures nearly equal to the customs collected on foreign goods, we have, practically, the free trade system.

THE LATE ELECTION AT SALT LAKE.—The election which took place in Utah for a member of Congress appears, according to the Vedette, to have been a perfect farce. The Mormons had it all their own way, and everybody in Mormondom voted as many times as he pleased. The Vedette of February 5th says:

Everybody knows that an election came off yesterday, or at least that polls were opened and closed, and that a number of people voted for somebody. We have witnessed many an election, have seen the course pursued by the multitudes of the South when negroes were driven in carriages to the polls, and also gang-stones of church-yards were exhausted for names to be used by the living, and know that the pine boards in potter's field furnished many a name to suit the register list; we have visited the polls in the Sixth Ward in New York, where the purlieus of "Five Points" were brought into requisition, as fighters to deter respectable citizens from the exercise of a just privilege; we have been a constant spectator of all the elections in San Francisco from 1849 to 1861, where the grave charge of stuffing ballot-boxes has always been made by the defeated party; we have seen all these, attended by such practices ever are, by riotous proceeding, blackguardism, and a violation of all law, but we have never yet witnessed an election where all the requirements of law, all the observance of custom, all adherence to rule and usage were so openly and flagrantly violated as was that of yesterday. There was no pretension of fraud, nor was there any evidence of a disposition to do wrong, but an utter neglect to observe the usual safeguards against illegal voting rendered the election yesterday a mere farce. Hundreds of men voted without knowing for whom, never seeing their ticket, not being asked their age, whether they were citizens, how long they had lived in the country, or any of those necessary questions as to the right to vote.

Brigham Young is urging the Saints to set up manufactories. He presses the matter in this novel way: "Why should not silk be produced and manufactured here? If a man was worth a million of dollars in the kingdom of God, and possessed the spirit of the Lord, and was told to gut worms and make silk, he would not say a word or ask a question, but would do so as was desired. So he would do if told to go and buy machinery. The earth is the Lord's, and He is going to give it to his Saints; and if we are faithful we shall inherit all things." It must be owned that this is combining religion with business in an eminent degree.

A special report on the resources of the State of Missouri has been prepared by Professor Waterhouse in compliance with an order from the State authorities. The Legislature of the State has ordered 200,000 copies printed for circulation in the United States and Europe. The report has been translated into several languages. The St. Louis Democrat thinks that nothing could contribute more to attract immigration to Missouri than the circulation of this pamphlet. This example of Missouri, other undeveloped States, including Oregon, might do well to imitate.

"Duke" Gwin has come down a long distance from his former high pretensions. He has ceased to covet ducal titles and other splendid baubles, and has accepted the Presidency of a Railroad Company in Mississippi. Digging with a spade on his railroad would be a more profitable business than that in which he has been employed for five or six years.

The cost of publishing the New York Tribune during the year 1866 was $885,186 39. The receipts for the same period amounted to $960,-17 89, showing a profit of only $24,259 50. The profits of the year 1865 amounted to $170,429 80. The difference is caused by the increased cost of printing paper, of telegraphing, etc.

The Denver News says that an enterprising man or company who will set to work and build a tip-top first-class hotel in Denver, has a golden harvest in store. The present unsightly barns which constitute our first class hotels, are almost nuisances.

Oliver Ames, of Easton, Mass., has been elected President of the Pacific Railroad to hold the office while General John A. Dix is absent as Minister to France. The salary of the position is $15,000 per year.

Opinions of the Supreme Court in the Test Oath Case.

Referring to this subject the Missouri Democrat says:

"The majority make no reference whatever to the oath as a qualification for office or suffrage. But the pretended principle upon which the majority base their decision, though so utterly absurd as scarcely to deserve mention, would extend equally to every application of the oath. The majority say, 'To constitute a qualification, the condition or thing prescribed must be attainable by every one,' and therefore the exclusion of persons for past conduct is not a qualification but a punishment. This puerile absurdity would make it a punishment to exclude women from suffrage, or persons of foreign birth from certain offices. The condition of manhood is not attainable by every one; therefore, reason the sages of the Supreme Court of the United States, it is not a qualification, but a punishment of women for being of the wrong sex. And yet upon this ridiculous assertion, that to 'constitute a qualification the condition must be attainable by every one,' rests the entire argument of the majority in both cases. For this is the only reasoning by which it is even attempted to prove that the disqualification of non-juring attorneys or preachers is not in the nature of a qualification, but is a punishment. Being a punishment, the majority hold it unconstitutional.

Nothing can be more lucid or forcible than the refutation of this piece of stupidity in the dissenting opinion delivered by Judge Miller, and its comparison of the two decisions one with another, and each with others of earlier date, is very cutting. Every candid reader, who carefully compares the admirable argument of the dissenting Judges with the two decisions, will be likely to agree with the minority that such decisions can spring only from the spirit which always construes the Constitution with the utmost strictness and rigid adherence to the letter in defining the rights of loyal men, and with the utmost laxity and liberal expansiveness in defining the rights and powers of traitors.

One other feature was needed to make more complete the protection which the Court extends to the rebels who throng around its doors for comfort. That feature the Court adds, by putting the widest possible construction upon the President's power of pardon. The majority say that after pardon, in the eye of the law the offender is as innocent as if he had never committed the offense; that 'he is thus placed beyond the reach of punishment of any kind,' and that to exclude him by reason of that offense from continuing in the enjoyment of any previously acquired rights is to enforce a punishment for that offense, notwithstanding the pardon. 'It is not within the constitutional power of Congress thus to inflict punishment by the execution of an expurgatory oath.' It is impossible not to see that if this decision is regarded as law, not only every attempt to punish traitors, but every effort to exclude them from the previously acquired right of suffrage or the holding of office, whether by Congressional or State authority, must fail. In a word, the doctrines of this decision restore Jefferson Davis in triumph to the Senate chamber, put the loyal men of Tennessee and Missouri under the feet of rebels, and restore to a larger share in the control of the Government than they ever held before, ten unrepenting, defiant and rebellious States.

We need not say that such decisions will never be recognized as law by the people of the United States. By the people, and not by the Judges of the Supreme Court, will this country be ruled, and they will soon find a way to reverse all decrees that make loyalty odious and treason honorable."

Reign of Terror in West and Middle Tennessee—Flight of Union Men.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 31, 1867.

A fearful state of things exists in Obion county in this State. The guerrilla, P. Farris, who murdered Senator Case, defies the authorities to take him. Numerous other scoundrels are in intense activity, and a general system of terror prevails. The neighboring county of Weakly is in a similar condition. There are received from that region to-day which represent that the Union men now, as during the war, have either fled out of the country or have left their homes and betaken themselves to the woods.

The rebels declare in the boldest terms that no Convention shall be held in those counties to send delegates to the State Union Convention which meets here on the 22d of February, and that all enemies of the old Confederate Government must be unconditionally exterminated. These counties are in West Tennessee. A similar state of things, however, prevails in some parts of Middle Tennessee. I saw a Union man in this city to-day from Lincoln county, who had been compelled to fly thence for his life. In Franklin county ex-members of the rebel army are going about in their uniforms, singly and in squads, declaring they never surrendered—that they are not subjects of the Yankee Government and that no one shall reside there who is. They insult, abuse, browbeat and threaten every loyal man they find, and the latter are making rapid preparations to leave the State. Nothing but the passage of the Loyal Militia bill will save the Union men of Tennessee from extermination.

The rebels, knowing that the adoption of this measure and the pending suffrage bill will forever put an end to their, outrages, seem determined to accomplish as much mischief as possible before their power is gone.

There was much interest manifested to-day while the debate went on in the House upon the Suffrage bill. Governor Brownlow, Major General W. P. Carlin, S. M. Arnell, and many speculators were present. The galleries were thronged with anxious freedmen. No vote was reached. The debate will continue to-morrow, and a vote will probably be taken. I have studied pretty closely the complexion of the House, and feel assured that at least thirty-seven votes, clear majority, will be recorded in favor of the bill.

How to Deal with the Indians.

The Missouri Republican understands the correct method of dealing with the Indians. We give the following article from that paper on the subject:

"Place the entire control where it was formerly. Under the War Department it worked well, and will again. Make no more treaties until they learn to respect them. No more presents except from the rifle and the carbine until they learn to fear your powder and respect you as great warriors, instead of what they call you now—"bang dogs" and "squaws." You cannot make an Indian fear or respect you until he has felt your power. War is their profession naturally, and when away from their camp they are on the war-path. Stealing with them is as much a part of war as killing, and if successful in that they are considered good warriors. We have not fully understood their mode and manner of war. They are seldom surprised; never take much of anything with them; subsist on the country, and are often days without meat, fearing that by shooting they might expose themselves to an enemy. They are the most watchful and cautious people in the world. We have always underrated their skill in war; it is their nature and profession. When we dispense with trains of wagons, establish depots of supplies, mount the men with horses that can travel and subsist on grass, winter and summer, dispense with camp equipage and cavalry traps, we shall have commenced in the right way. We can soon learn to get along without tents and such articles as constitute an outfit for tents, and which greatly retard movements against Indians, with their knowledge of the country and their habits. The Flat Heads hunt on the Missouri and Yellowstone, are semi-civilized, good friends of the whites, and their services would be valuable.

The Indians are on the move in the summer, and but little could be done in that season of the year. Fall and winter is the time when they go to hunt buffalo and into winter quarters. Serve them as Conner did the Snakes and Bannocks in January, 1863, on Bear river, which made a lasting peace with them at least to this time. Placing the entire management of the Indians under the control of the War Department will save the Government a large amount of money. The Indians could have peace or war as they might choose, and many difficulties brought about by whites trading with them would be stopped.

A HERMIT.—A late number of the San Antonio Herald, in its news from New Mexico, speaks thus of a recluse away up in that region:

"A hermit has taken up his abode in the Apache country, in the Hueco mountains, about thirty-five miles east of El Paso. He is an Italian by birth, about sixty years of age, speaks many languages, is well educated, and is believed by the simple Mexicans, who visit him by hundreds, to be endowed with remarkable gifts, such as the working of miracles, etc. He has resided in Peru, among the Andes, in Brazil, in Patagonia, Central America, and subsequently in Europe and Asia, and also in the Pyrenees, and more recently among the mountains of New Mexico. He also spent twenty-nine years of his earlier days among the mountains as a missionary to the Indians. He possesses a great quantity of curious books and documents, many of the latter from crowned heads, showing that at one time he was a personage of considerable note, all of which he seems gratified to show those who visit him."

BYRON'S MSS.—The copyright of some of Byron's pieces has not yet ceased to be the property of Mr. Murray, the London publisher, and he has the invaluable advantage of possessing the original manuscript in the poet's handwriting.

STATE ITEMS.

Rev. J. F. Devore returned on Tuesday from the Dalles quarterly meeting—eight or nine persons had professed conversion and the meeting was to be continued.

The Advocate learns that Hon. J. S. Smith, of Salem, intends leaving soon with his family on a visit to Europe. He will attend the Exposition at Paris, after which the party will travel and see places of special note in the old world.

OMAHA.—Omaha, as the eastern terminus of the Union Pacific Railway, is fast looming up into importance. In 1853 it was the site of an Indian village; in 1857 it had a population of 3,500; it now has a population of 11,000. It is situated about midway between New York and San Francisco, 2,000 miles from each. Since October, 1865, the company have constructed and are running 330 miles of road, westerly, and have added the Chicago and Northwestern Company in building, since April last, 130 miles, a feat of railroad ing altogether unparalleled. They have also a contract for a bridge over the Missouri river to connect Omaha with Council Bluffs, and reasonably expect by July next to have their road in complete running order to the foot of the Rocky Mountains, more than half the distance to San Francisco.

LUXURIES.—The Boston Post of a recent date, thus sums up the luxuries and enjoyments of the season at the East:

"Sleighing, skating, coughing, sneezing, blowing your nose, flourishing your handkerchief, buying lozenges, overshoes, and swallowing cough candy, but to speak of cayenne pepper tea, hot whisky punches, horse blankets in the day time, and old stockings around your throats at night."

FAILED TO AGREE.—The jury in the late murder case failed to agree, and consequently were discharged, but the verdict of all who purchase goods at KOHN & FISHEL'S clothing store, No. 131 Front street, is arrived at with the utmost unanimity, which is, that they invariably get the best articles for the least money.

NEW ARRANGEMENT.—THEOLD BUCHTEL & CARDWELL PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, No 1 First Street, has passed into the hands of JOSEPH BUCHTEL, Proprietor and Operator, who, having just returned from San Francisco, with ALL THE LATE IMPROVEMENTS, is prepared to take every style of picture known to the art.

FOR GRATUITOUS DISTRIBUTION,

"THE SCIENCE OF LIFE,

Or, How to Live and What to Live For."

A highly interesting and valuable Work, including "The Philosophy of Marriage," Mental Disease, Their Cause and Cure," and a thousand valuable hints and good counsels for young men.

THE PROPRIETOR OF THE

Pacific Museum of Anatomy and Science, San Francisco,

Have determined, regardless of expense, to issue FREE (for the benefit of suffering humanity) four of their most interesting and instructive Lectures on Marriage and its Mysteries—Love; Nervous Debility, Premature Decline of Manhood, Indigestion, Weakness or Depression, Loss of Energy and Vital Power, the Great Social Evil, and those maladies which result from Youthful Follies, Excesses of Maturity, or ignorance of Physiology and Nature's Laws. These invaluable Lectures have been the means of enlightening and relieving thousands and will be forwarded FREE on receiving twenty-five cents in postage stamps, by addressing "Secretary Pacific Museum of Anatomy and Science, as the Eureka Theatre, Montgomery street, San Francisco."

Letters to be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.

LOUIS A. CARNETT.

LOUIS A. CARNETT.....President and Manager.
JOHN HEWSTON, Jr.....Chemist and Superintendent.

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works, and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business.

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world, and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the melting and commercial value of bullion.

Their charges hereafter will be as follows:

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS.

One-eighth of one per cent. (fractions a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000, and two dollars for any smaller sum. Returns made in twenty-four hours.

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS.

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $2,000, and one-eighth of one per cent. for all amounts over that sum, and one per cent. on the silver contained. Returns made in twenty-four hours.

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS.

On bullion under 300 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 300⅛600 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 600⅛750 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 750⅛949½ parts gold, 8 cents per ounce.

Above 950 the only charge will be for coinage. But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars.

FOR COINING GOLD.

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent.—and which is paid by us to that institution. But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us.

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS.

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint.

Gold bars of other assayers, in good standing, will be received by us at the highest market rates.

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country, and returns made through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express.

CHARGES AT U. S. BRANCH MINT.

For the convenience of those not familiar with the terms of the Mint, we subjoin the tariff of charges now in force at that institution:

For refining bullion under 300 parts gold, 3 cents per ounce.
For refining bullion from 300⅛600 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce.
For refining bullion from 600⅛750 parts gold, 7 cents per ounce.
For refining bullion from 750⅛880 parts gold, 11 cents per ounce.
For refining bullion from 880⅛949½ parts gold, 14 cents per ounce.

The charge for coinage is half of one per cent., and the charge for making fine silver bars, the same.

Comparing the net value of deposits for coinage, with the proceeds of parted gold bars sold in the market—assuming that the bars have cost ½ of one per cent.—they must be sold at the following per rates to equal the return which would have been made had they been deposited for coinage:

850 per to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents.
845 per to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents.
885 per to equal San Francisco A. & R. Works return, at refining charge of 8 cents. mh1d3m

STEAMER MAIL —We have received the following note from a citizen of this city with a request to publish We have no knowledge of the matters stated as facts

EDITOR OREGONIAN Would it be presuming too much to ask those devoted servants of the public, the steamers having the contract for carrying the mails why it is that they take special pains to avoid bringing the letter mail only once or twice since the arrangement was entered into, here we had a mail of that kind by steamer They invariably leave just before the arrival of the mail from Francisco, thereby forcing it to come overland involving the loss of a portion and the vexatious delay of the remainder which, when the P M S S Montana fired the gun which announced her arrival in the harbor The Montana brought New York dates to Feb 1st, which, had the Oregon waited a short time might have been obtained, thereby reaching Portland Feb. 27th As it is, we must wait their arrival by stage, and hope, if extremely fortunate to receive them by March 10th It is supposed by the public generally, that the object in engaging the steamers is to bring the mail was to avoid the danger and hindrance of its overland transportation during the winter months, but the conclusion most naturally to be drawn from the result is, that it was merely a subsidy to the company, as they get the pay without rendering any equivalent service As the time approached for the letting of the contract for a tri monthly mail service between Portland and San Francisco, as authorized by recent Act of Congress, let us hope that it may fall into hands not quite so regardless of the public interest and convenience.

HELP FOR THE DESTITUTE.—We commend the following to the attention of the charitable. It is written by a gentleman who has many opportunities for observation

EDITOR OREGONIAN Permit me through your columns to call to direct your attention to the welfare of the destitute in Portland In most metropolitan towns there are annually a greater proportion of very poor than in interior towns who depend on the activity of trade for employment. During the rainy season, when fines are unfavorable, quite, there must be indistinguishable and families who suffer for the lack of means of support. Sometimes it is the stranger within our gates; sometimes the invalid and at others the widow and fatherless. Although the opportunities of the writer for obtaining extended and exact information are limited, sufficient has been gleaned to demand attention. A prominent boarding house keeper whose word is entitled to credit, states that there are cases of destitute persons in this city who have no means and uncertain resources who do not know from day to day how they are to eat. There are at least a few families, perhaps many, in Portland similarly situated. It is not our province to enquire whether this condition is the result of misfortune improvidence or necessity—but to inquire if these things be so In the absence of any relief societies for which there may or may not be occasion, an individual responsibility attaches itself to every good citizen to feel and to know that none of their acquaintance or others, whose circumstances they are imperfectly acquainted with, are permitted to suffer for the necessities of life from any deficiency of our city. The most acceptable assistance would be employment, not at starvation wages, but at fair, liberal rates. If you cannot furnish employment, do the next best thing, cast your bread upon the waters and it will return to you after many days—in ... Philanthropy.

VANCOUVER ITEMS —From the Vancouver Register we clip the following items There will be a special term of the County Court of Clark County, W T held at the Court House on Thursday, March 7, 1867 ... The Mississippi in 1811—An Incident of Navigation.

[From the St. Louis Dispatch.]

In our intercourse with some of the early settlers of St. Louis, collecting material for our Biographical sketches of Western Boatmen, we have gleaned much valuable information in regard to the early navigation of the western rivers. Many of the incidents are both exciting and interesting and were witnessed by those now living in our midst.

We shall, from time to time, in connection with our biographies, give much of this character of incidents.

It was in the year of 1811 and 1812 that so many earthquakes occurred in the Southern and Western country, causing villages to tumble in ruins, and entire change in the face of the country, and a vast destruction of property. On the line of the Mississippi particularly, one of those dreadful phenomenon of nature occurred in those years which was distinctly felt in St. Louis, and caused much alarm to its inhabitants.

An eye-witness, who was on a flat-boat at the time on his way to New Orleans with a load of produce, and afterward returned to St. Louis, described the scene as heart rending, and filled every living thing with horror. His boat at the time was about forty miles below New Madrid.

The first shock took place in the night of December 16, 1811, while the boat was lying at the shore, in company with several others. At this period there was danger apprehended from the Southern Indians, it being soon after the battle of Tippecanoe, and for safety, several boats, kept in company for mutual defense, in case of an attack. In the middle of the night there was a terrible shock and jarring of the boats, so that the crews were all awakened and hurried on deck with their weapons of defense in their hands, thinking the Indians were rushing on board. The ducks and geese, and various other aquatic birds, whose numberless flocks were quietly resting in the eddies of the river, were thrown into the greatest tumult, and with loud screams expressed their alarm in accents of terror. The noise and commotion soon became hushed and nothing could be discovered to excite apprehension, so that, the boatmen concluded that the shock was occasioned by the falling in of a large mass of the bank of the river near them. As soon as there was light enough to distinguish objects, the crew were all up making preparations to depart. Directly a loud roaring and hissing was heard like the escape of steam from a boiler, accompanied by the most violent agitation of the shores, and tremendous boiling up of the waters of the Mississippi in huge swells, rolling the water, and tossing the boats so violently that the men could with difficulty keep their feet. The sandbars and points of the island gave way, swelled up in the tumultuous bosom of the river, cranking and crashing, tossing their arms to and fro, as if sensible of their danger; while they disappeared beneath the flood. The water of the river which the day before was tolerably clear, being rather low, changed to a reddish hue and became thick by the agitation of the earth beneath, was covered with foam, which, gathering into masses the size of a barrel, floated along on the troubling surface. The earth on the shores opened in wide fissures, and closing again, threw the water, sand and mud in huge jets higher than the tops of the trees. The atmosphere was filled with a thick vapor or gas, to which the light imparted a purple tinge altogether different in appearance from the autumnal haze of the Indian Summer, or that of smoke. From the temporary check to the current, by the heaving up of the bottom and the sinking of the banks and sand-bars into the bed of the stream, the river rose in a few minutes five or six feet, and impatient of restraint again rushing forward with redoubled impetuosity, hurrying along the boats now let loose by the horror-struck boatmen, as in less danger in the water than at the shore, where the banks threatened every moment to destroy them by the falling earth, or to carry them down in the vortices of the sinking masses. Many boats were overwhelmed in this manner, and their crews perished with them. It required the utmost exertions of the men to keep the boats in the middle of the river, as far from the shores and sand-bars and islands as they could. Numerous boats were wrecked on the sandbars and old trees thrown up from the bottom of the Mississippi, where they had quietly rested for ages; while others were sunk or stranded on the sandbars and islands. At New Madrid, several boats were carried by the reflux of the current into a small stream that puts into the river just above the town, and left on the ground by the returning waters, a considerable distance from the Mississippi. The sulphurated gases that were discharged during the shocks, tainted the air, and so strongly impregnated the waters of the river, to the distance of 150 miles below, that it could hardly be used for any purpose for several days. New Madrid, which stood upon a bluff 15 or 20 feet above the summer floods, sunk so low that the next rise covered it to the depth of five feet. There is much more that could be said upon the subject, but we shall have to defer it for the present.

SLAUGHTER PITS.—The Collieries of England sacrifice nearly 1,000 lives outright every year, not to speak of the shortening of life by an unhealthy subterranean occupation. The late explosions at Barnsley, although some 425 lives, were by far the most destructive on record. Experience, science and legislative authority seem to have exhausted their resources in the ineffectual endeavor to cope with the subtle and invisible foe which pervades all the cavities of a coal-to-adamant in hydrogen as that of England. Sir Humphrey Davy's safety lamp (covered with a wire gauze through which the air and light, but not flame, can be communicated) has been in use over a half century; yet only the ratio, hardly the aggregate, of violent deaths in coal mines, has been diminished. As long as mankind are fallible—and the most prudent are liable to be off their guard at some fatal moment—the safety lamp must remain but a partial protection. Still the problem has not been given up, and undoubtedly the Parliament at its next session will make a fresh effort to bring invention to the rescue. Some mechanical means of indicating or neutralising the explosive gas—explosive when mingled with air—is earnestly sought. It would seem, however, that ventilation, even if perfected so as to obviate the accumulation of the gas, must be powerless against its sudden eruption from concealed reservoirs.

REBEL SUITS.—A good, deal of interest turns on the case of a soldier named A. P. Morey, formerly in General Grant's army, and appointed a special detective by that commander. Morey had been lately sued in Wicksburg (Miss.) for larceny, and a criminal prosecution instituted against him by one of the courts. From the papers (in answer to a request from Congress, which body has specially taken up the case) it appears that in his action as military detective during the armed occupation of Vicksburg, he found and seized a couple of United States tents in possession of a Jew shopkeeper there and handed them over to the United States Quartermaster. The suit against him for this seizure has been persistently pressed, and he is now under $5,000 bail. The laws of Congress make it permissable for him, at his option, to transfer such a case to the bar of the United States Court; but the Vicksburg tribunal refuses to let it go. General Grant indorses Morey fully. The result, especially the attitude to be taken by the Government, is watched with interest. The above is but one of many hundred cases, having more or less similarity, that have arisen, not only in the Southern, but also in the Northern States.

THE YANKEE COLONY IN PALESTINE.—A Constantinople correspondent writes: "I wrote last week of the pitiable condition of the colony at Jaffa. Later news confirm their suffering and the fact that some twenty deaths had occurred among them, but it also brings out another side to the question of who is the real author of these calamities. The leader of the enterprise claims that the colonists have been plundered by the American Consul at Jaffa, and not by him. He has appealed to Constantinople to have the Consul impeached. It is true that several thousand pounds have passed through the Consul's hands. He has purchased lands and other things for them. As he is a German Jew, not an American at all, it is possible some of this money may have stuck to his fingers, and any way it is a shame to our Government to appoint such a consul there. But, at the same time, if I am correctly informed, the colonists feel that they have been deceived, if not swindled, by the man who brought them out. I am sorry for them, and they must be helped in some way, but the whole idea of this expedition was an absurd one, and ultimate failure was the only result possible.

A MODEST PETITION.—In the Illinois Legislature, January 28, a petition was presented from the grand jurors of the United States Court of the Southern District of Illinois, in which the petitioners set forth that "they were but illy recompensed for their services, their pay was low and expenses high, and they requested that they be given one penknife, not to exceed in value $500, one gold pen, one set of jewelry for each of their wives; fifty copies of the daily papers, or their equivalent in money, $75 worth of stationery, $50 in money to defray their expenses in visiting the penitentiary, and free passes over all the railroads in the State. The report was referred to the Committee on Swamps and Overflowed Lands.

Gen. Butler has succeeded in having five suits which are pending against him in the New York Supreme Court, transferred to the Circuit Court of the United States.

The Seward-Motley Correspondence.

[Correspondence Chicago Tribune.]

WASHINGTON, January 28.—The correspondence between the State Department and Mr. Motley, relative to the latter's resignation of the Austrian mission, called for some time ago at Mr. Sumner's instance, was sent in this afternoon. It was not formally laid before the Senate, but the following is a correct summary of its contents. There are but two letters, one from Mr. Seward and one from Mr. Motley, though Mr Seward's covers one from a person designated as "an American gentleman traveling in Europe. It appears that this anonymous individual sent a letter to Mr. Seward charging generally that most of our Ministers and Chief Consuls in Europe are political opponents of the Administration; that many of them are given to public denunciations of the President and Secretary of State. The writer specially mentions Messrs. Marsh and Motley, saying that the latter had spoken of Mr. Seward as a degraded old man, and had expressed a decided preference for English customs and English government as compared with our own. A copy of this precious document Mr. Seward sends to Mr. Motley, and his own letter is only long enough to ask the Minister, in diplomatic phrase, what he has to say about these charges. Mr. Motley's reply is of some length. He begins by expressing his astonishment that such a letter should be sent him by the Department, and says his first thought was to content himself with a flat denial of the charges made by Mr. Seward's informer. He concludes, however, to make a more detailed answer. He does not stoop to deny the charges that he has spoken disrespectfully of the Secretary or President. He meets the charges relative to his excessive admiration of English laws and customs by saying it cannot be believed by any one who knows him or has ever read either his historical or philosophical writings. The general charge that he is opposed to the President's policy brings from him the statement that he has spoken of both the President and Congress under his own roof and among his friends, and was not aware that a citizen living abroad, even in official capacity, was debarred from holding and expressing views of his own regarding the great questions presented by the overthrow of the rebellion. He thinks we should abolish and forever prohibit all legal and political distinctions on account of race or color, and this by Constitutional Amendment. After such amendment was adopted, he would declare a general amnesty. He closes by tendering his resignation, without assigning a cause for so doing. It is probable that the country will see sufficient cause in steps to be taken. Hence Mons. Rondi's complaint to the British Consul, and the letter of the latter to Mr. Lewis. The whole proceeding is a novelty, and indicates a change of domestic policy only to be accounted for by the increased latitude the departure of the French has left to the extreme clerical party, now, doubtless, determined to carry out the stringent ecclesiastical rule which has for a time been in abeyance. It appears that Antonelli expressed to Mr. Russell his personal regret that he could not give a more favorable answer to his application. He is clear-sighted enough to foresee the indignation this sudden outbreak of intolerance will arouse; but he has to deal with a power stronger than this personal opinion, and he can maintain his position only by referring to it.

I further know that Antonelli has thrown out a hint that the American service, which is not now held in the hours of the United States Legation, but in a separate hired room, will also be put down. As regards the Scotch service, a large room outside the walls of Rome had already been hired yesterday, and the service was to be performed in it this day. If the Pontifical authorities interfere again to prohibit even extramural worship, it is difficult to say what further steps can be taken to move a government so insensible to shame, and which shows so little gratitude for the equality of rights accorded to its followers in Protestant England.

A GREAT ARMY IN RUSSIA.—The recruiting, which is to take place in Russia from the 27th of January to the 27th of February, at the rate of four conscripts per 1000 inhabitants, and five per 1000 in certain districts, will produce 850,000 men. The Russian army at present numbers 800,000 men under arms; add to which the 850,000 produced by the new levy, and the round number is 1,650,000.

ST. LOUIS VS. PITTSBURG.—In a recent lecture at Pittsburg, Horace Greeley told his auditors, whohwere in great part iron manufacturers, that their fine city had but a few years more in which to thrive and grow, "for," said he, "when St. Louis begins to manufacture iron, Pittsburg will lose all its most important business."

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, 2 P. M., March 1, 1867.

The last price of gold from New York was given at 135¾, and Exchange 109. Legal Tenders are 135@74.

There are indications that the lethargy of trade for the past three months will soon break up. Groceries are also being a little more lively, and apples have taken a decided advance. Produce of most descriptions remains dull. This is particularly true of flour, butter, bacon and lard. Flour—Following brands have declined: Salem mills, 25c; Dayton, 25c; Harrisburg, 25c. Butter is extremely dull at 20c for Oregon solid and 20 to 30c in brine; the latter an extreme price for choice. Lard nominal at 14c; California tins, 15c; very little on hand.

During the week, several very fair, and one or two large orders for assorted groceries have been filled for points up the Columbia, and an unusually large freight arrived by the Continental for the same destinations.

Messrs. White Bros. are about to start a consignment of Oregon City woolen goods to Montana. A small lot of made up goods from the Eagle mills was started for Idaho a few days since.

Messrs. Sasier & Co. shipped per Montana 1,000 bbls extra Imperial flour for New York via the Isthmus. Of this new trade, the San Francisco Bulletin of the 21st says:

The shipments of flour to New York via the Isthmus have proved very beneficial to all parties concerned. The shippers have realized a fair profit, the steamship company have reaped a handsome freight, and the market has been greatly relieved of a surplus that could be better spared than retained. When, about the 1st of November last, it was announced that the outgoing steamer would carry an invoice of flour in transit to New York, the project was regarded by many as very questionable, and was quite generally looked upon, even by the shipper himself, as an experiment. The shipment was, indeed, sent forward as a mere speculation by a Clay street merchant, to whom belongs the honor of having sent the first flour and wheat to New York by a route never before patronized by a similar class of freight. The first shipment was made November 10th. Of the three succeeding steamers, only one carried flour. Since then the shipments have been very regular, and show a steady increase, the last outward steamer carrying a larger amount than any of its predecessors. Below we give the shipments in the order made up to date:

	Barrels.
November 10th.....Constitution	2,245
December 1st.....Golden City	590
December 10th.....Constitution	450
December 29th.....Golden Age	1,113
January 10th.....Golden City	4,031
January 19th.....Montana	5,844
January 30th.....Constitution	6,200
February 9th.....Golden Age	5,765
February 19th.....Golden City	10,149
Total	39,889

Thus in less than four months we have shipped nearly 40,000 bbls of flour to New York by this route, valued at over $250,000, not including the freight, which was prepaid, and which amounted to $79,453. This flour is sent forward as slow freight, and consequently out of the total amount only 10,181 bbls have arrived at its destination, the shipment of January 19th being due at that port yesterday. So far as advised by telegraph, these invoices have sold in that market at an average of $15 currency per bbl, equal to $10 50@11 25 in coin, according to the fluctuation in the price of gold. No wheat has been sent to New York via the Isthmus since the first shipment of 2,000 sacks Nov. 10th. In consequence of the great prejudice of the millers there, it is deemed more profitable to ship flour instead of grain, though there are greater inducements offering the former than the latter. By another season we hope the New York millers will have so far overcome their prejudices as to place themselves on an equality with our millers in respect to a knowledge of their business. From present appearances, the shipments to New York, via of the Isthmus are likely to assume a permanent character.

DR. G. W. BROWN

HAS located in Portland, in CARTER'S NEW BUILDING, for the permanent cure of all private diseases, such as syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, stricture &c. He also calls the attention of those suffering with

to call at his office and be at once restored. Surgical operations SKILFULLY performed on the EYES for film, cataract, strabismus or cross eyes.

Below are some of the many testimonials:

This is to certify that I, John B. Dewau, was blind for over nine years, and tried all means of a cure, and many doctors, and all of no effect, and I spent all the means I had. Finally, I had to become a county charge, and when I was taken to Dr. G. W. Brown, and stated my case to him, and misfortune, he at once commenced to treat my eyes, and now I am well, and can see to do my work. I am suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr. G. W. Brown. The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured.
